

Copy

Boston, Jan. 2, 1849.

My Dear Friend:

I think I have forfeited the opportunity extended to me, in behalf of your Association by yourself, some time ago, to lecture before the Association, by my unintentional neglect to answer your kind letter. But, it seems, by your letter of the 31st, you have not struck me off (as you would certainly have been justified in doing) from the list of lecturers; and you now write to know whether I can be with you on the evening of the 29th inst. As I am to go to Maine next week, and as the annual meeting of the Massachusetts A. S. Society will be near the time you have specified, I should prefer the evening of Feb. 5th or 12th, though I should be sorry to incommode either Mr. Parker or Mr. Emerson. But as I suppose those gentlemen have their lectures already prepared, and as I have yet to prepare mine, I trust it will be more convenient for one of them to lecture for you on the 29th than myself. I will, however, try to complete my lecture in season for the 29th, so that, in case of a pinch, you may not be disappointed. Yet secure me the 5th or 12th of February, if you can. My subject will be "The Rights of Woman."

Yours, for a happy new year,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

Boston, Jan. 2, 1857.

My Dear Friend:

I think I have forgotten the appointment intended to me in regard to your Association by yourself, some time ago to lecture on the subject of the Sabbath, by my unobtrusive request to answer your kind letter. It is now, by your letter of the 21st, you have not stated on all the points which have been settled in regard to the day of lecturing, and you may wish to have written I can be with you on the evening of the 29th inst. At 7 o'clock in the evening, and on the second evening of the same week, I. B. Roberts will be near the first and next evening, I should prefer the evening of the 29th or 30th.
Should I should be sorry to know of either Mr. Parker or Mr. Kimball.
But as I suppose some gentleman has been invited to lecture regularly, and as I have yet to prepare mine, I trust it will be more convenient for me to lecture the day on the 29th than myself. I will, however, try to complete my lecture in season for the 29th, so that, in case of a change, you may not be disappointed. The matter on the 29th or 30th of February, if you can. My address will be "The Alliance at Boston."

Yours, for a dear old year,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.